For the past 10 years, students in Creative Fashion 1 at West High School have created dresses out of new and gently used pillow cases to send to Africa. To date, they have sent 842 dresses. This year, they were fortunate to partner with professors and students from the University of Scranton who generously offered to take many of their dresses on their trip to Uganda. They were also fortunate to receive a few pictures of our dresses being worn by some beautiful little girls! We couldn't be more PMSD Proud!

TEC Update

4th graders at TEC have “adopted” an assisted living facility called Country Meadows. For various holidays and seasons the students make cards or crafts for the residents. The facility LOVES it and so do the students. Residents each get a card/project at meal time and they rave about them and even hang them on their doors. The students are truly showing their understanding of our PRIDE program's "E" for empathy.

TEC's teachers and staff members are slowly becoming world class PICKLEBALL CHAMPIONS due to the encouragement and coaching of 3rd grade teacher, Eric Argot. The Tuesday after school activity has proven to be a great team building and stress reliever for all involved.

Clear Run Elementary Center Update

Clear Run Elementary Center celebrated reading in a big way this year. During the first two weeks of March, the PTO sponsored a Read-A-Thon. The class with the most logged minutes at each grade level was visited by a local author. On Tuesday, April 25th, local author Janice Kenyatta. shared her book "Just As It Is!" with Ms. Franz's kindergarten class. The story is about a little African American girl whose parents inspired her early in life to love and appreciate her natural features, including her hair, just as it is! Each student received an autographed copy of the book, as well as an Abena doll. On Monday, April 31st, Chrysa Smith met with first graders from Ms. Sedlak's class. Students were entertained with stories from her poodle posse and all students went home with an autographed series of her books. Also, on Monday, April 31st, students from Ms. Evans's second grade class celebrated their accomplishment with a virtual visit from beloved author Alan St. Jean. Earlier in the year, all of the second graders took part in a writing activity with him and were excited to receive personalized copies of his OinkADoodleMoo series.

On Friday, April 28th, Clear Run Elementary Center partnered with Mudita Gaming Lounge at the Crossings for a special Family Game Night. Families had access to all sorts of board games (Checkers, Battleship, Guess Who, Connect 4, Spoons, Jenga, and Uno to just name a few) and video games. For an additional fee, some students also decided to challenge themselves to VR (Virtual Reality) access.
